Learning Race, Learning Place: Shaping Racial Identities and Ideas in African American Childhoods

Erin N. Winkler

Learning Race Learning Place: Shaping Racial Identities and Ideas in African American Childhoods, by Erin N. Winkler, uses in-depth interviews with economically disadvantaged African American children to explore how race and place shape their racial identities and ideas. The book is published by Rutgers University Press.